

SpiritPath Coaching Model Flow

After the client has experienced achievement of their goal, take the client back to the awareness of their Spirit to listen for a message about what they learned. You can also ask the client if there is anything else that is asking for expression at this time.

During the Forming, Integration, and Evaluation Stages, you may run into any number of challenges the client faces as they go through the integration/change process.

Go back to the storming stage questions to check what values may be in conflict & to test them against each other. This process supports clients in developing clarity

During the Evaluation stage you may discover the client needs more integration of new understanding, desires, etc, before they develop the confidence to enact their values, goals, and desires. Go back to Integration to find out what and how needs to be integrated to create confidence